HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 23. - I question the net result of a nation-wide radio program now being broadcast from Hollywood. Its curpose—ostensibly and perhaps actually—is to search out new screen talent. Promising youngsters are to be brought here from the hinterlands, all expenses paid for a week or two, and given a trial airing. Studios, supposedly, will fight for the opportunity of signing the best performers, the others will go back home, none the worse for their experience. The most serious catch is-and to prove it I can cite the cases of half a hundred contest winners brought here by various fan magazines that the ambitious would-bees who fail to land screen contracts will not go home. Once in Hollywood, they invariably stay— and not one in ten can earn a decent living, for this town is already overflowing with wouldbes. There's no other town and no movie industry.

Wish I hadn't read that Mary Kornman, once the little girl sweetheart of "Our Gang" comedies is many time her second comedies, is marrying her second spouse—I've been feeling creaky ever since.

Dorothy Lamour's just a bit discouraged—and you can't blame ner. A few days ago her orchestraleader husband, Herbie Kaye, arrived in town en route to San Francisco where he is playing an engagement. Dorothy, who's been hounded by rumors that their marriage is on the rocks-and maybe it is, for all I know--seized the opportunity to quiet the gossips. She paraded Herbie through all the nightspots in Hollywood, made a thorough show of her affection for him by headslose conversation, and assured herself, on his departure that she had done a perfect job of rumorscotching. And less than three hours after Herbie was Frisco bound, she received a telephone call from a reporter. "Is it true?" he demanded, "that Mr. Kaye stopped here to discuss a property settlement?"

One of Filmville's more unusual success stories is that of "Slicker," the seal. He made his debut in "Spawn of the North," at $100 a week, stole the picture and promptly began to climb the salary ladder. Now, working in "Fisherman's Wharf," Slicker is drawing down $1000 a week. His owner and trainer gets a very tidy stipend for helping the director put him through his paces, and his stand-in, hired after "Spawn of the North," rates three times the wages paid most human stand-ins. Slicker's only worries are the local herring catch and his income tax.

THERE'S ALWAYS A LIMIT

Man ever seeks to reach new levels in traveln speed, in height, in distance. But no matter what kind of a device he concocts there is always an end to the possibilities.

Prof. William F. Durand of Stanford University, an aviation expert, emphasizes this thought by predicting that airplanes will not be able to climb much beyond 60,000 feet or attain a speed of more than 500 miles per hour.

At that, the professor says, an Italian plane which made the existing speed record of 440.8 miles per hour had to sacrifice everything to its engine. Only sufficient room for the pilot and a small supply of fuel was left in the craft.

Perhaps man does not need to go faster; maybe e isn't meant to go higher. But, like the machine in the play, "The Star Wagon," we can only see the past and present, not the future.

Man's greatest thirst for adventure will not be senched. He'll set to work on a new machine in break the old marks.

REPEALING THE WAGNER ACT

News dispatches report Representative Anderson, D., from Missouri, is introducing a bill to repeal the Wagner Act.

In considering the advisability of the repeal of the Wagner Act, it might be well to refresh our readers' memories with the fact that when the old N.R.A. was declared unconstitutional in May, 1935, industrial production at that time stood at 84. lions have not yet learned that social security is an expensive matter and must be paid for with hard earned money, this fact has been brought home to those who have been taxed. There are many who believe that the social security taxes added to minimal the social security taxes Forty million persons have applied to the Social Security Board for numbers, making them eligible for old age "annuities" when they retire from action and surpluses taxes, were in considerable part responsible for the downward skild taken by the social security taxes, added to punitive capital gains and corporation surpluses taxes, were in considerable part responsible for the downward skild taken by the social security taxes, added to punitive capital gains and corporation. skid taken by the nation's business and industrial interests in 1937-1938. Experience has shown, at any rate, that the taxes which are scheduled to increase are the scheduled to increase, are unnecessarily high. By 1980, these taxes will cause the accumulation of a reserve fund estimated at $47,000,000,000. For this there is no necessity. There should be a change to a "pay as we go" program with only enough taxes to take care of current needs and to provide a moderate reserve. This conclusion is strengthened by a realization that the reserve fund must, under the law, be invested in United States bonds. This means that the actual cash received goes into the Treasury where it is available for any federal expenditure, such as building battleships.

Unquestionably social security is here to stay — provided it is not wrecked by stubborn refusal on the part of its friends to remedy its defects. Congress has it within its power raising funds to pay old age annuities to eligible workers.

Though these decisions have had the effect of making it secure from constitutional attacks, the social security program is by no means an unqualified success. The prevalence of king fountain, beat him to the field, and forget your woe in joy of living on two good legs.

But, suppose that you can't? Suppose, for one awful moment, that your legs won't budge; that they lie still, terribly still in spite of all your efforts to move them? Imagine how it must feel to lie helpless and listen to the children going to school, hear them playing in the lot, hear them fighting, laughing, singing on their way, and know the cold fear that strikes your heart at the thought of never again being one of them. Never again to be one of that carefree, happy, heedless crowd!
It seems too awful for any child's spirit to bear, yet some must bear it. Illness came like a thief in the night and stole their gladness,, stole the power from their joyous, dancing, skipping feet and laid them helpless, to watch their world go by. It seems just too much to ask that a child, whose life is action, accept this fate; and yet some must. Each year sees this blight fall upon childhood and youth, blotting out their laughter, blotting out the light of their lives, leaving them to the sad comfort of their own tears. Surely a way to to help them, must found. It must.

During this month of January there is a drive on for funds for this cause. We are asked to think about this thing, to plan to kill it, to lend all the force of our intelligence, our social service, our money, to the prevention and cure of infantile paralysis. Nobody with a heart will allow this plea to pass unheeded. None of us is too poor to lend a hand, with something in it.

There are not enough hospitals to treat the stricken children. We must build and equip more. The country is to be divided into districts, each with its own hospital for the treatment of this disease. Prompt treatment means half the battle won. There are not enough doctors and nurses for the work. We must get more and we must pay them. Too little is known about the cause and the cure of the blight, so we must stablish more laboratories and

In Quest of Mercy for Their Five Doomed Sons

There's Life In the Old Bird Yet

This gaunt, antiquated plane of 1910 vintage pictured soaring through Miami, Fla. skies at the All-American maneuvers offered a comical contrast to other streamlined craft. But note that the old bird has a three-wheel landing gear, the latest innovation in modern planes.

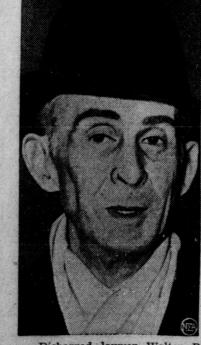

Bird, Bearing Triple Burden, Is Victor

Old Doc Stork won a triple victory over Jack Frost in Chicago when he successfully delivered not reception for Supreme Court justices. only the expected one, but three babies to Sigmond Fronczak. Fronczak had started for a physician, found his car's engine frozen. While he fumed, Baby No. 1 arrived, unassisted. Dr. W. E. Block, answering a phoned summons, found the baby apparently dead. After spanking it to life, he discovered Mrs. Franczak had given birth to two more babies. Dr. Block, left, above, holds two of the triplets. At right, their father, realizing that with two new girls and a boy he now has six children, holds his
